First to say, this is a developmental teaching textbook, which was selected for my son's 10th grade Catholic school religion class, and as such it is a spot on perfect choice. It is highly accessible, intelligent, well written, organized, honest, responsible and contemporary. It is not a book of apologetics per-se, dogma or piety, rather, a very positive, complete, reader-engaging, discussion-ready teaching of the factors that go into making good, informed, morally sound decisions and evaluations. Pitfalls to the process are clearly addressed. It is based in solid, educated Christian Catholic understanding of individual worth and Christ's teachings applied in real life. It has remarkable wealth of example and quotes that inform the subject at hand, as well as good scope and clear direction. It doesn't balk at taking up tough questions, and provides the means of making decisions--and litmus tests for judging those decisions--while leaving the conclusions open to the reader. In other words, it teaches (among other things) developing an informed conscience, growing the confidence to stand one's ground having formed sound convictions, to apply good skills in discerning good and fair laws, to choose good values and to live well in one's family and community. It is absolutely excellent from a Catholic perspective, and likely many others. I have kept a copy of the book for my use, and have given it as a gift to other parents, as a review of the moral foundation of why we live as we do. As there is no product description, here is a generic one I found at another book site: Your Life in Christ introduces high school students to the essential message of Christian moral teaching, love of God and love of neighbor. Against this backdrop, students encounter and explore Catholic teaching that applies the mandate to love in real-life scenarios and situations. In a culture where moral relativism increasingly blurs distinctions between right and wrong, students quickly see that this subject couldn't be more relevant. Students consider and study such topics as conscience formation, law, Jesus as a moral guide, sin and forgiveness, respect for life, and sexuality. 288 pages
